

Transit Ambassador Train the Trainer:

Trainers who are certified on the Transit Ambassador Four-Core Modules of Transit Ambassador (Essentials of Customer Service, Effective Communication, Managing Customer Feedback, and Managing Stress), sometimes feel they need a bit of coaching and mentoring when delivering some of the advanced modules of this program.

CUTA is now offering a 3-day Train the Trainer course specifically intended for dangerous situations specifically aimed at Transit Ambassador trainers that CUTA already certified. This new course will also act as “refresher training” for Transit Ambassador Certified Trainers.

Transit Ambassador Train-the-Trainer: Advanced Modules for Certified Trainers

Difficult Situations

Handling inappropriate customer behavior is a very sensitive matter. In this module, participants discover how to avert or minimize potential conflict and defuse anger while dealing with customer disruptions, fare disputes, vandalism or other difficult situations. Operators are trained to identify and deal with situations that range through the “different – difficult – dangerous” spectrum. The focus is on diffusing a situation before it moves up the scale from different to dangerous.

Dangerous Situations

This module works best in conjunction with Difficult Situations to reinforce identification and de-escalation skills. The module training focuses on operator safety in situations that could become violent. There are four video segments dealing with the topics of personal threat, theft, bomb scares, drunkenness, use of weapons, (pre-meditated with a knife and spontaneous with a broken beer bottle) as well as external violence resulting from road rage. Participants practice developing responses from video scenarios.

Diversity in Transit

Understanding and interacting effectively with diverse customers and work team is the focus of this module. Types of diversity are identified and system diversity policies are reviewed. Guidelines for working in a diverse community are discussed and participants practice appropriate responses to sensitive transit case studies.
